

Refrigerator Door Tracking Interface

This interface is meant to track the number of times a day that we open the refrigerator door. All members of the house will tag their weekly schedule so that we can compare frige opens during the time each of us is generally alone at home.

An addittional dimension to the data is that the cat had an early interest in the sensor on the fridge and would therefore nock it, or the usb chord, off of the refrigerator from time to time. Luckily for us, she later moved on to more exciting ventures.

